How are LEGO bricks made?

A. Doppler, age 14 of California

LEGO bricks start out their lives as little plastic granules in eight colors: blue, white, yellow, red, light gray, black, dark gray, and green. Then they are fed through pipes into molding machines, where they are melted, shaped, cooled and ejected. The new LEGO pieces are then taken to another factory, where the finishing touches are put on. Then they're ready to be packed into boxes for sale – and uppacked by you when you're ready to start building!

How many Master Builders work for LEGO?

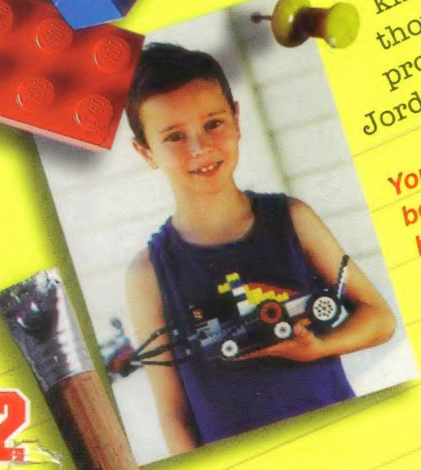
Jack Deacon, age 10 of Pennsylvania

That's a tough one! There are about 200 Master Builders at the LEGO company, designing and building everything from LEGO® DUPLO® models to LEGO® MINDSTORMS® robots to the giant sculptures at LEGOLAND®. But if you count all the people, young and old, who build with LEGO bricks every day - there are millions of Master Builders!

Paul and Lori, two LEGO Master Builders!

I'm sending several photos of my recent creations to be considered for publication in LEGO Mania Magazine. Also enclosed is my resume. I would like to work for the LEGO company as a model designer. I know I'm not old enough to get a job yet, but I thought I might start early with the application process.

Jordan R. Danzl, age 8 of Illinois



Your models are very good Jordan! Here are a few tips on becoming a LEGO model designer. First, play with your LEGO bricks as much as you can, and build, build, build. Study 3D design in high school and college, including computer-aided design (CAD), as many of our designers use computers in their work. Most of all, keep using your most powerful tool: your imagination!

See you next issue in the LEGO Mailbag!

MONSTERS OF THE DEEP!

TURN THE PAGE IF YOU DARE!

Underneath the ocean waves lurk some of the most mysterious and dangerous creatures in the world! The fascinating facts about the giant squid, the shark, and the killer whale inspired LEGO® model designers to create Ogel's mutant sea beasts. But what do we really know about these amazing "monsters of the deep?"

HEY! ANYBODY OUT THERE!?

JUST SQUIDDING AROUND

If you wrote down a list of everything scientists know for certain about giant squid, it would be very, very short. Giant squid live in the deepest parts of the ocean, sometimes as far down as 4,500 feet! No one has ever captured a living giant squid, so important facts like what they eat, how long they live, even how big they can grow are still mysteries.

Giant squid are the world's largest invertebrates. An invertebrate (in-vur-tuh-brit) is a creature that has no backbone. An earthworm is an invertabrate but Giant Squid are much bigger! Giant squid have been reported to be anywhere from 55 to 65 feet long, and there may even be larger ones we have never seen.

Giant squid have tentacles, like an octopus, that they use to grab their prey. They also have a beak like a parrot, which is strong enough to snap steel wire. When they're threatened or afraid, they can shoot a cloud of black ink from a sac in their body to confuse their foes.

The only known enemy of a giant squid is a sperm whale, the largest species of whale in the ocean. We know that sperm whales like to eat giant squid, but nobody knows how they find them and catch them!

SNACK FOR A SHARK?

When you think of scary ocean creatures, you probably think of sharks. There have been lots of books and movies about sharks, and the news was full of stories about sharks attacking people last summer. How dangerous are sharks, and should you worry about one making a snack out of you?

The truth is you have a better chance of being struck by lightning - twice! - than you do of being attacked by a shark. Most shark attacks are actually the result of "mistaken identity." In cloudy or murky water, the shark mistakes a swimmer or a surfer for a big fish or a seal.

Scientists use "shark cages" to study sharks up close.

Sharks have existed since before the dinosaurs roamed the Earth!

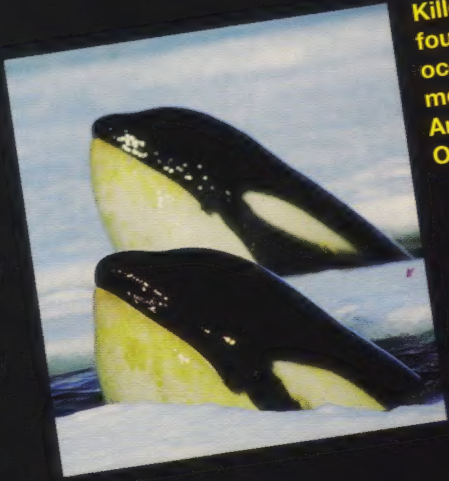
A giant whale shark. Notice the two divers swimming with him?

A WHALE WITH A BAD NAME

Killer whales have a pretty frightening name, but they're not as scary as they seem. No killer whale has ever attacked a person in the wild, in fact, they eat almost everything but people! If a killer whale had a refrigerator, it would be stocked with fish, squid, sharks, seals, whales, penguins, gulls, and octopi (and maybe peanut butter and jelly, too, who knows?)

Orcas grow to be about 30 feet long, which might seem small for a whale (some whales get as big as 60 feet long). Killer whales are actually the largest member of the dolphin family! If you had a killer whale for a pet, you could expect him to be around for a long time - male killer whales live to be about 60, and females live to be 90!

These are just a few of the "monsters of the deep" that live in the world's oceans. There might be more we don't know about yet - but if there are, you can be sure the Mission Deep Sea squad will find them!



Killer whales can be found in many oceans, but they are most common in the Arctic and Antarctic Oceans.

SCARY BUT TRUE SHARK FACTS!

- A shark can smell food up to a quarter mile away.
- Sharks can't float in the water like other fish - they have to keep swimming constantly or they'll sink and die.
- Killer whales and salt water crocodiles will attack sharks - and so will other sharks!
- There are 368 different species of shark, and they can be found all over the world.

DISCOVER GALIDOR™ AND JOIN

A mysterious alternate dimension. A powerful foe. A dangerous quest. When two teenagers from Earth find themselves in a strange new universe, they embark on the greatest adventure of their lives. Aided by an unlikely trio of allies, and pursued by a powerful conqueror, they must discover the secret of GALIDOR™ and save the Outer Dimension!

NICK BLUETOOTH

Nick Bluetooth always knew there had to be something more to life than going to school and living with his Grandfather. When he stumbles upon a mysterious egg-shaped craft capable of dimensional travel, his greatest adventure begins.

ALLEGRA ZANE

Allegra has been Nick's best friend all her life. She's smart, she's athletic, she's a whiz with a computer... and she's got attitude. At first, Allegra is freaked by being in the Outer Dimension, but eventually she realizes how much there is to discover there. Practical and sharp, she helps keep Nick's feet on the ground (no matter what world they're on!)

JENS

Jens is a four-armed robot with the mind of a brilliant, if eccentric, scientist. He's nervous and a little neurotic, and somehow always manages to land himself and those around him in danger. But when there's trouble, you can count on him to be first to help. Jens is a master at inventing all sorts of gadgets, and can fix anything by interchanging his hand with a welding iron.

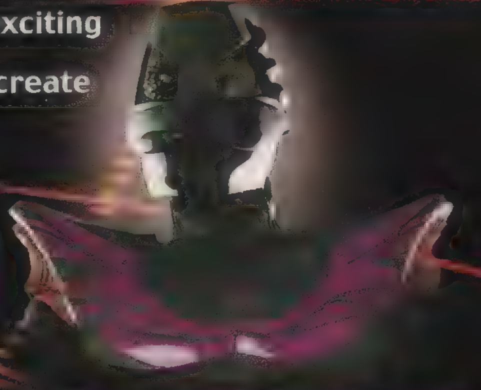
FOX KIDS

Be sure and catch the premiere of GALIDOR™ on FOX KIDS Saturday mornings in February 2002!

THE QUEST!

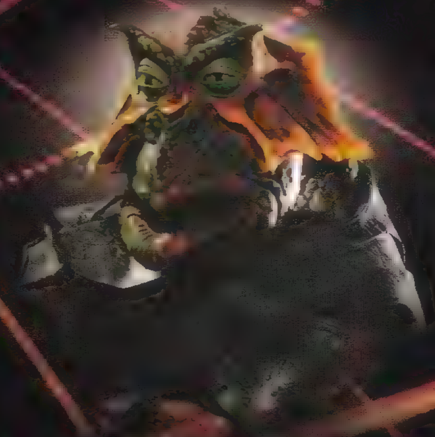
That's the story behind GALIDOR™, Saturday morning's most exciting new show! GALIDOR™ combines live action thrills with CGI to create the most amazing realms you've ever seen, populated by cool creatures able to change their shape at will. Look for GALIDOR™ on Fox Kids starting in February, and the LEGO line of GALIDOR™ toys in summer 2002!

WWW.GALIDOR.COM



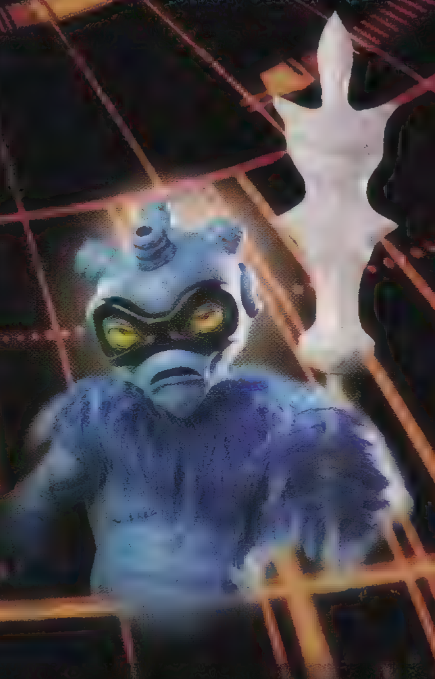
GORM

Evil and relentless, Gorm is out to conquer all of the Outer Dimension, including GALIDOR™. He knows that only one obstacle stands in his way – Nick – and he's determined to capture and destroy the boy. Gorm's most potent weapons are his illusion-casting and mind-control abilities. Those who dare to challenge him can wind up lost forever in the illusions he creates!



EURIPIDES

Euripides is an Amphibib and looks like a man-sized frog. He's the last of his kind, gifted with the ability to move things telekinetically and communicate through telepathy. Gorm wiped out the entire Amphibib race, so Euripides is dedicated to helping Nepol and Jens return Nick to GALIDOR™. Euripides is noble and wise, but sometimes spends too much time thinking and not enough doing. His staff gives off light that can be used to show the way or to temporarily blind opponents.



NEPOL

Nepol was once an eight-foot tall Siktari warrior, until Gorm shrunk him in battle. Even though he is short now, he's still as tough, fearless and angry as ever before. His temper gets him into trouble, but his ice-blaster armbands helps him get out of it again. He's a loyal friend to Nick, and he's looking forward to settling the score with Gorm once and for all.
